“EVENTUALLY,
WE FOUND OURSELVES RIDING IN MICHIGAN’S
UPPER PENINSULA.”

AJ Horst

When I was ten years old, my dad came home from work around Christmas time, practically bursting with excitement. His boss had given him two sleds as a Christmas bonus! Living right next to a snowmobile trail, where sleds zipped by all winter long, I remember thinking, This is it — my time has finally come!

Not long after, my dad brought home a 2000 Polaris Indy 500 and a 2002 Ski-Doo Legend 370 Fan. Naturally, he put me on the fan-cooled sled — the more beginner-friendly option — and I started learning to ride right in our backyard.

For the next two years, I was mostly a passenger, riding on the back with my mom or dad, counting down the days until I turned 12 — the magic age to take snowmobile safety and finally ride solo. Sure enough, I passed the course, got my license, and waited eagerly for winter to arrive.

Some of my favorite memories were born during those early years: riding to the local pub for lunch on snowy afternoons, or waking up at 3 a.m. to drive up to Crandon, Wisconsin for a full day on the trails. Even now, I can still picture those moments clearly. As the years rolled on, we upgraded sleds and expanded our riding adventures. Eventually, we found ourselves riding in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, especially around the Houghton and Hancock areas.

Some of my favorite memories were born during those early years: riding to the local pub for lunch on snowy afternoons,

The trails there were wide, fast, and reliably snow-covered. Booking trips months in advance wasn't a gamble — good snow was practically guaranteed.

We made regular runs up Brockway Mountain and made it a point to stop at local restaurants to support the small businesses that made the UP feel like home. When my buddies started joining the trips, things got even more fun — we'd roll up as a big group with crossover and mountain sleds, diving into powder and inevitably getting stuck in the most hilarious ways. Every misadventure turned into a story we'd retell for years.

Best places to ride in Wisconsin

Wisconsin is nothing short of a snowmobiling paradise, especially up north, where long winters, reliable snowfall, and an expansive network of groomed trails combine to offer some of the best sledding in the Midwest.

The region known as the Northwoods—particularly Vilas and Oneida counties—stands out: thousands of miles of trails snake through dense conifer and hardwood forests, cross frozen lakes, and pass through remote wilderness, yet are still close to towns with lodging, dining, and fuel.

Another great spot is Vilas County, which doesn't only claim the title "Snowmobile Capital of the World," but also delivers—in pure trail mileage, scenery, and winter culture. Locations like Phelps in Vilas give riders access to well-marked and well-maintained corridors (e.g. Corridor Trail #6 runs right through town), plus connectivity: once you're in Vilas you can ride to trails totaling over 600 miles, and even reach into Michigan's Upper Peninsula trails.

Washburn County also deserves mention: over 240 miles of groomed trails wind through wilderness close to lodging and town conveniences. These trails travel through a mix of hardwood and evergreen forests, wetlands, farm fields, lakes, and streams, offering scenery that's always changing.

Marathon County, further south but still excellent, gives you a very large trail network (880+ miles) with strong club support and gorgeous winter vistas.

If you want breadth, reliability, and scenery, head north. Just make sure to check the trail reports, because even in northern Wisconsin the snow conditions, grooming, and trail availability can vary a lot depending on the winter.

Our favorite weekend ride!

Minocqua is one of the top hubs: it has around 1,700 miles of groomed trails, set among over 1,300 glacial lakes and more than 233,000 acres of public forest land. The snowfall in that region averages about 85 inches annually, which helps keep things reliably good.

There's nothing like a weekend snowmobile trip through Wisconsin's Northwoods—where the air is crisp, the trails stretch for hundreds of miles, and every stop feels like part of a classic winter story. From the first wack of the throttle to the last night gathered around a glowing fire pit, it's an adventure that blends adrenaline, scenery, and camaraderie.

We kicked off the weekend early Saturday morning near Minocqua, a snowmobiler's paradise with endless trail connections. The sleds came to life just as the sun broke over the pines, the trails freshly groomed and glistening. We followed the Bearskin Trail, weaving through snow-covered forests and across frozen lakes toward Hazelhurst. The silence of the woods was broken only by the rumble of engines and the laughter echoing from our helmets.

By midday, we pulled into Norwood Pines Supper Club, a well-known stop for riders, for a warm lunch of soup, sandwiches, and a round of hot coffee. The pub was buzzing with other snowmobilers swapping stories and trail tips—the kind of camaraderie that makes winter in Wisconsin so special. After refueling both body and machine, we headed north toward Boulder Junction, where the trails opened up into sweeping runs lined by endless evergreens and the occasional deer darting across the path.

As daylight faded, we rolled into Sayner, where a local tavern—The Pub 'N' Prime—welcomed us with a hearty dinner of steaks, fried walleye, and a few cold drinks. Later that night, we gathered around the fire pit behind our lodge, trading stories under a starlit sky. The sound of crackling wood and distant sleds humming along the trail made for a perfect ending to the day.

Sunday brought fresh snow and perfect conditions. We looped through St. Germain, following the Bo-Boen Trail System, one of the best-groomed networks in the state. The morning ride was fast and scenic, with wide, flowing trails and plenty of photo-worthy moments. Midday, we stopped at a trail-side café in Eagle River, the Snowmobile Capital of the World, for lunch and a last round of laughter before making our way back south.

By the time we returned to Minocqua that evening, we had logged nearly 200 miles of trails, countless laughs, and memories that will last until next winter.

Meet Dan Hathaway from our finance department

Years of employment:
1 year

What you ride:
2015 Kawasaki Vulcan S 650 Custom

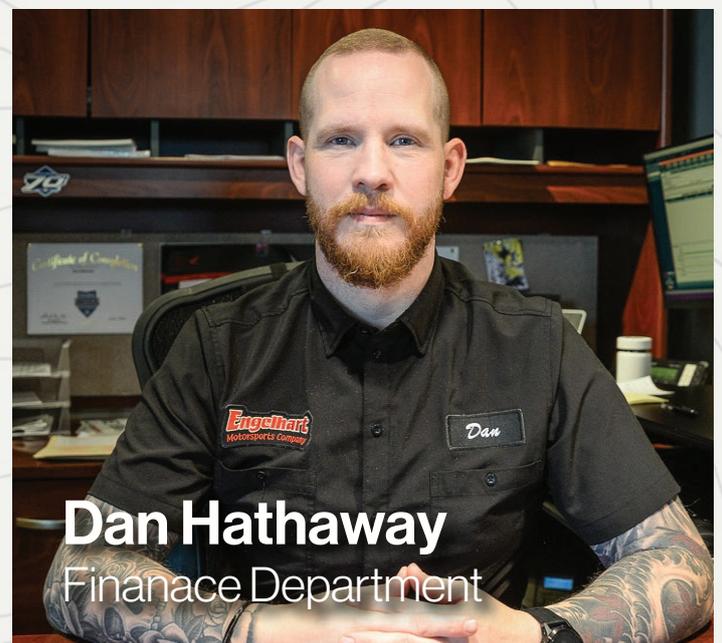

Hobby:
Riding/Working on Motorcycles, Volleyball,
Martial Arts, Archery

Favorite part of your job:
I enjoy being able to play a part in helping our customers realize their motorsports dreams. Whether it's a new rider buying their first bike, a seasoned rider buying their longtime dream bike, or a family buying a side-by-side to take out on the trail, it's a privilege to be a part of their story and experience. I also strive to actively work towards removing the stereotypical stigma of what a dealership experience looks like for our customers.

Customer Review of Dan –

Alejandro H.
I really appreciate Dan and Noah with the purchase of my bike, they got me out of the door in less than 2 and a half hours a few hours before closing, they were super effective with their time by showing me all the details of the bike and working with the paperwork. They definitely exceeded my expectations for their customer service. If you want to purchase a bike, I recommend you these two folks.
